I think you will be glad to bear that the missionaries labouring in the famine districts in the north of Shantang have already begun to reap their rowned. We hear of nearly 200 baptisms and of overa thousand enquirers. Most of there are from regions antouched by the grain distribution. About 8 days ago we had an usually beavy fall of rain for this time of year. The rain only fell for a few bours in the night, but in the morning all the low-lying places in the streets were flooded. I mentioned some time ago that there had been an incipient tailoutting. That incident was explained. One youth in the binding office of the American press seeing a fellow-working nodding over his dosk, was seized with a misoblevous desire to apply the chears which lay at hand. Now the mania seems to have began in earnest. It is reported that many persons in the outer city have lost a portion or the whole of the tail; sometimes the osa is sustained in the daytime and sometimes by night. Some of the people are in a state of terror, believing that the individual who loses his tail will die within a hundred days. Others seem indifferent, saying "What does it matter if the "tail goos?" The inner city is as yet froe from this mysterious epidemio, though charms are being freely distributed amongst the people. More astounding than the loss of tails the news brought by your last issue that quondam missionaries have been by their presence anotioning the rites of ancestral worship. THE GREAT DUKE'S EXPERIENCE OF RUSSIAN DIPLOMACY. The newly-published volume of the Dake of Wellington's despatches contains a large smount of matter of peculiar interest at the present time. The volume is occupied with the year 1829.30—a period when England was as much vexed by Russian aggression and Russian diplomacies as it is to-day. IMPERIAL QUARTO. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. POR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bere given in extenso. Each and every word is Curlen, Palmer & Co.'s Cognac 3 star 89 fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, sohieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference Governor, and complete in all its parts, to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found. indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To Just published, and favourably noticed by the parties resident in England and interested in Chine it cannot but be invaluable occasionally. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and unwards of 600,000 Chinese charge ters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the Taxanoulies, is Febrenheit degrees and font, kept in the open student of this difficult language absolutely re- 1 . LARGE EARNINGS OF MODERN The high prices given for pictures during the last twenty years about no sign of diminution, either in England or France; indeed we seem to have reached a condition of things in which artists, whose reputation dates only equal to those of great old masters. M. de Neuville, M. de Nitties, M. Eirmin-Girard, Mr. Fildes, and others, may be mentioned as examples of the surprising rapidity with which reputations of the kind which leads to fortune may be made in these days. As for the older artists, already in full celebrity, there seems to be hardly a limit to their pocuniary success. The storm now raged with redoubled fury. A perfect avalanche of stones and trunks of trees began to roll down the slope above

"We cannot stop here," said Michael: "We cannot stop anywhere," returned the jemschik, all his energies apparently overcome with terror. "The storm will soon send us to the bottom of the mountain, and that by the shortest way." "Take you that horse, coward," returned

Michael. "I'll look after this one." A fresh burst of the storm interrupted demanded, a share of its political influence. It was in the autumn of the year 1808 that stopped by the trunk of a tree, it would have been forced over the edge of the precipico. "Do not be afraid, Nadia," cried Michael

It was with the greatest difficulty that either men or beasts could stand against the wind, and for every three steps they took in advance, they lost one and even two by being forced backwards. They slipped, they fell, they got up again. The vehicle ran a great risk of being smashed. If the hood had not been securely fastened, it would have been blown away long before this. Michael Strogoff and the jemschik took more than two hours in getting up this bit of road, only half a verst in length, so directly exposed was it to the lashing of the storm. The danger there was not only from the wind which battered against the travellers, but from the avalanche of stones and broken trunks which were hurling through the air above their heads. Suddenly, during a flash of lightning, one of these masses was seen crashing and rolling down the mountain towards the tarautass.

The jemschik uttered a cry. Michael Strogoff in vain brought his whip down on the team; they refused to move. But a few feet further on and the mass would pass behind them! Michael saw the tarantass struck, his companion crushed; he saw there was no time to drog her from the vehicle. Then, possessed in this hour of peril with superhuman strength, he threw himself belind it, and planting his feet on the ground, by main force placed it out of danger. The enormous mass as it passed grazed his
